

IMPLEMENTATION PROBLEMS OF SOCIAL WELFARE POLICIES IN TAMIL NADU

K. Ravikumar<sup>1</sup>, Dr. M. Jeyaprabha<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1,2</sup>Department of Political Science and Public Administration, Annamalai University, Tamil Nadu, India.

Email: ravikumaarpab@gmail.com

Abstract

Every government's only objective is to enhance and transform its respective society. They establish a social compact between the government and the people in order to accomplish this. These laws contain obligations and rights created for the benefit of all members. In a perfect world, citizens would support the government administration by paying taxes and working with it to accomplish its objectives. In exchange, the government enacts laws to protect the social lives of its people. The foundation of social welfare policy, which directs government initiatives to help those in need, is the notion that a government has a duty to safeguard its citizens. The theory states that a society can only flourish if it protects people whose well-being is under danger. Programs that provide public services as well as financial and other support to satisfy specific needs are governed by social welfare policy. For the development of the society's weaker groups, the Tamil Nadu government has implemented a number of social welfare measures. Even though the policies may be well-structured, they are worthless if they are not carried out as intended. The study makes an effort to assess Tamil Nadu's social welfare policies implementation issues by using a documentary and analytical approach to reach a conclusion.

Keywords: Policies, Justice, Government, Problems, Implementation.

Research objective

➤ To provide an explanation for and conduct an analysis of the difficulties associated with the implementation of social welfare policies in Tamil Nadu.

METHODOLOGY

This study maintains a healthy equilibrium between a documentary approach and an analytical one throughout its entirety. In order to accomplish this, it makes extensive use of secondary sources, such as articles from newspapers and magazines, reports based on investigations, and other forms of research along these lines. In addition to the component described above, an analysis is founded upon the individual observations of its participants. This study adopted a qualitative methodology, centering its attention on secondary sources and carrying out a thematic analysis.

INTRODUCTION

When we talk about the health policy, education

www.ajmrhs.com

eISSN: 2583-7761

Date of Received: 26-12-2025

Date Acceptance: 05-01-2026

Date of Publication: 06-02-2026

policy, agriculture policy, and so on, we are referring to the social welfare policies. A major tenet of social welfare policy is the notion that there exists a sphere of human existence that is neither exclusively private nor wholly individual, but rather shared by all people. The social welfare policies, which have experienced a huge expansion in connection to the requirements and expectations of the general public as well as the most recent developments in the fields of technology, social organization, industrialization, and urbanization. Nevertheless, the focus of the study is mostly on the socioeconomic development as well as the social welfare programmes of Tamil Nadu. The Government of Tamil Nadu has taken an active role in the fields of social and economic programming as well as financial matters, and it also plays a pivotal role as a primary catalyst in the advancement of social and economic policy.

The social welfare programmes that have been implemented by the Government of Tamil Nadu touch on a variety of topics, including the protection of the environment, medical care and health, education, and housing, amongst others. Thomas Dye contends that social welfare policy addresses the questions of what the government does, why they do it, and what difference it makes. The policies governing social welfare play a significant part in public administration, particularly in terms of increasing the degree, to which they are successful, as well as in terms of their implementation and monitoring. The administration's primary focus should be on ensuring that its policies regarding social welfare are carried out effectively. This is due to the fact that it entails carrying out the fundamental judgments about policy. The study not only examines the circumstances necessary for successful policy implementation but also analyses and discusses the challenges associated with the implementation of social welfare policies.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

Implementation is not an automated process like other parts, and therefore the successful completion of policy objectives cannot be guaranteed; the implementation of social welfare policy in Tamil Nadu is associated with a large number of challenges. The use of confusing and conflicting language by the government when issuing policy pronouncements is one key factor that contributes to the failure of policies to be put into effect as intended. These policy declarations are not very clear, and as a result, those responsible for executing the policies make their own judgments' when doing so.

Another contributor to the failure of public policy to be effectively implemented is the widespread practise of unionization within the bureaucracy, particularly at lower levels. Because of their lack of power, higher and middle level bureaucracy are unable to prevent the lower level staff from engaging in corrupt behaviour and failing to respond to requests. In the year 2022, the Times of India published an article stating that corruption has become so ingrained in the system that it has even affected government officials' blood. According to a survey that was carried out in the year 2018, Tamil Nadu has been ranked as the third most corrupt state in the country. Another factor that has an impact on the way social welfare policies are put into action is intervention from political executives.

Politics influenced by interest groups was another factor that contributed to the ineffective implementation of policies. In this regard, one example that illustrates the lack of concern shown by businesses about the effects their actions will have on the environment is the fact that these businesses continue to use outdated technology and are hesitant to adopt more modern methods. People have the opinion that industrialists have political connections, and that these political connections affect the process of making decisions regarding environmental policy and allow wasted interests to have free play. During the process of policy implementation, many honest policy implementers encounter various obstacles and hurdles, and they are hampered by corrupt authorities who are also involved in the process. However, despite the efforts that have been made, the process of getting the social welfare policies efficiently implemented has remained ineffective and sluggish.

The issue with administration is one of the most significant obstacles standing in the way of the implementation of policy. A significant obstacle that arises during the process of putting policies into action is the deficiency of sufficient institutional capacity, both in terms of institutional structure and administrative capabilities. Another crucial big administrative cause that adds to the difficulties of the process of policy implementation is the lack of staff and financial resources. This is one of the major contributors to the problem. The failure to meet the goals and objectives of a well-planned social welfare strategy is mostly attributable to the unskilled workforce working in the government of Tamil Nadu.

The time crunch is to blame for the implementation gap that has been created. During the process of determining the time frame for the implementation of the policy, the current conditions are not taken into consideration. It is ignored how much work the implementing agencies already have on their plates, and instead, the head offices put pressure on the agencies to hurry up the process of putting policies into action. As a result, the targets are not fulfilled, which leads to the ineffective implementation of policies in such pressurized situations.

Willpower and motivation are two things that are severely lacking among the administrative personnel; without them, nothing is conceivable. As a result, the conscious participation of those responsible for implementing the policies is required, and the policies themselves remain unimplemented. Some high-ranking executives in the private sector were also responsible for undermining the committed public authorities. The commercial interests and the temptation of monetary gain in the personal both end up in the formalistic enforcement of the laws.

Any policy that is put into effect is for the benefit of the citizenry, but it has been seen that citizens do not collaborate as required and instead attempt to exert their will on the policy's implementation by a variety of dishonest tactics, which is not a healthy practise. Additionally, there are times when citizens withdraw their participation, which results in the policy implementer being unable to do them justice.

Condition for Successful Implementation

There are certain criteria that must be met in order for the successful implementation of policies to occur. These conditions encompass a variety of operations and metrics, in addition to time and resources. However, the impact of a policy is not the same as how it is implemented. The following are some of the preventative steps and strategies that can be taken to avoid the failure of the policy.

There should be no room for interpretation in the statement of the policy, and the policy's aims, objectives, and contents all need to be crystal clear. The target areas and the groups that the implementer is needed to cover should both be crystal clear and direct about their expectations. It is imperative that everyone working on the project receive the appropriate education necessary to understand the policy implementation procedure.

The person or group responsible for putting the policy into effect should make an effort to win the support of the general public and earn their approval. It is important to determine and adhere to the order of priority for the task that has to be done.

The implementers need to be extremely staunch in their adherence to their ideals and should not be readily swayed when confronted by political leaders. It is of the utmost significance that the chief executive be familiar with the concepts, and that there is enough coordination between the many agencies. The person in charge of putting a policy into effect has the primary responsibility of making sure that all of the relevant citizens and personnel are informed about the policy. In addition, the implementers of the policy on the ground level must adhere to ethical and moral standards in order for the policy to be successfully implemented.

CONCLUSION

It should come as no surprise that carrying out a fundamental decision that addresses an issue, outlines the goals to be pursued, and outlines the structures and implementation process is what policy implementation entails. In order to effectively implement social welfare policies, states need to be more stable, which in turn would improve the standard of life for populations. Instability in the political sphere can manifest itself in a variety of ways, but the most pervasive and all-encompassing manifestation is widespread corruption. This is because corruption is both commonplace and pervasive.

Since the permanent executives are the ones responsible for putting the policies into action, it is imperative that they maintain their ethical standards at all times. It is absolutely necessary to assign appropriate duties and activities to the personnel resources available in order to have a good go at implementing social welfare policies.

Additionally, the incentive and reward system for staff plays an important part in assisting personnel in performing successfully in their assigned jobs. In addition, there should not be any form of time pressure placed on the questions and answers, and there should be perfect communication both inside and between the different organizational divisions. The policy on social welfare serves as a guide for action and reflects the long-range goals and core principles of the government, which should be incorporated into a variety of administrative domains. In a nutshell, implementation is a stage that takes place between making the choice and really carrying it out. It is quite vital that you have a look at it. Not only in terms of putting policies into practise, but also in terms of monitoring what actually takes place in the world.

Acknowledgement

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who contributed to the successful completion of this article. The consideration and assistance that I received from Dr. M. JEYAPRABHA were crucial in assisting me in arranging my composition in a way that was appropriate for the era in question. In addition, I would want to express my appreciation to all of the researchers and authors who have, in the past, created outstanding work on subjects that are similar to the one we are currently discussing. The citations and references made it a lot simpler for me to complete the task that I had to do.

Funding

Nil

REFERENCES

1. Carswell, G., & De Neve, G. (2014). MGNREGA in Tamil Nadu: A story of success and transformation?. Journal of Agrarian Change, 14(4), 564-585.
2. Carswell, G., & De Neve, G. (2022). Transparency, exclusion and mediation: how digital and biometric technologies are transforming social protection in Tamil Nadu, India. Oxford Development Studies, 50(2), 126-141.
3. Corbo, V., & Schmidt-Hebbel, K. (1991). Public policies and saving in developing countries. Journal of Development Economics, 36(1), 89-115.
4. Deshpande, R., Kailash, K. K., & Tillin, L. (2017). States as laboratories: The politics of social welfare policies in India. India Review, 16(1), 85-105.
5. EMPOWERMENT, T. N. (2005). Government of Tamil Nadu Social Welfare Department Tamil Nadu.
6. Ganesan, P. (2018, January). Social welfare schemes of DMK government in Tamil Nadu during (1969-2011) a study. In Proceedings of the Indian History Congress (Vol. 79, pp. 911-916). Indian History Congress.
7. Garcia-Zamor, J. C. (2019). Problems of public policy implementation in developing countries. In Handbook of Comparative and Development Public Administration (pp. 711-720). Routledge.
8. Hill, M., & Hupe, P. (2002). Implementing public policy: Governance in theory and in practice. Sage.
9. Jacob, N. (2008). The impact of NREGA on rural-urban migration: field survey of Villupuram District, Tamil Nadu. Centre for Civil Society, New Delhi.

10. Janaki, V. A Study of Social Welfare Measures and Human Resource Development in Tamil Nadu with Special Reference to Women Empowerment.

11. Joshi, A., & Aoki, M. (2014). The role of social capital and public policy in disaster recovery: A case study of Tamil Nadu State, India. International Journal of Disaster Risk Reduction, 7, 100-108.

12. Joshi, D. K., & McGrath, K. (2015). Political ideology, public policy and human development in India: Explaining the gap between Gujarat and Tamil Nadu. Journal of Contemporary Asia, 45(3), 465-489.

13. Ma, S. (2008). Sustainability of India's welfare system in the context of globalization: A comparative study Maharashtra and Tamil Nadu'. Southeast Review of Asian Studies, 30, 67-83.

14. Mahendran, A., & Indrakant, S. (2014). Public distribution system in Tamil Nadu, India: Rice supply scheme of prosperous, problems and policy. International Journal of Academic Research in Public Policy and Governance, 1(1), 15-29.

15. Martin, P. (1999). Public policies, regional inequalities and growth. Journal of public economics, 73(1), 85-105.

16. Nair, T. K. (1983). Social Welfare Manpower: A Study in Tamil Nadu. Concept Publishing Company.

17. Narayan, S. (2018). The Dravidian Years: Politics and Welfare in Tamil Nadu. Oxford University Press.

18. Narayan, S. (2021). Book review: S. Narayan, The Dravidian Years. Politics and Welfare in Tamil Nadu.

19. Perumal, C. A., & Padmanabhan, V. K. (1986). Tribal's of Tamil Nadu and public policy. The Indian Journal of Political Science, 47(4), 457-472.

20. Portney, P. R. (2016). Public policies for environmental protection. Routledge.

21. PRABAKARAN, S. Gender Discrimination of Social Welfare Schemes among the Women Workers in Unorganized Sector of Tirunelveli Corporation of Tamil Nadu.

22. Pramila, B. (2014, January). A critical analysis of the socio-economic status of tribal women in Tamil Nadu. In Proceedings of the Indian History Congress (Vol. 75, pp. 1232-1240). Indian History Congress.

23. Raju, V. (2014, January). Social measures in Tamil Nadu (1947-1967) with special reference to reservation. In Proceedings of the Indian History Congress (Vol. 75, pp. 1215-1223). Indian History Congress.

24. Saetren, H. (2005). Facts and myths about research on public policy implementation: Out-of-Fashion, allegedly dead, but still very much alive and relevant. Policy Studies Journal, 33(4), 559-582.

25. Saravanan, V. (1998). Impact of welfare programmes on the tribal's in Tamil Nadu: 1947-1991. Review of Development and Change, 3(1), 90-108.

26. Schofield, J. (2001). Time for a revival? Public policy implementation: a review of the literature and an agenda for future research. International Journal of Management Reviews, 3(3), 245-263.

27. Singh, S. (2016). Evaluation of world's largest social welfare scheme: An assessment using non-parametric approach. Evaluation and program planning, 57, 16-29.

28. Srinivasan, S., & Bedi, A. S. (2009). Girl child protection scheme in Tamil Nadu: an appraisal. Economic and political weekly, 10-12.

29. Sudina, M., & Lakra, A. J. (2015). Awareness on health and social welfare benefits among beedi workers—a community survey. Manipal Journal of Nursing and Health Sciences (MJNHS), 1(2), 100-103.

30. Thiagesan, R., Soundari, H., & Gopichandran, V. (2022). "Medicines is all that I can sometimes offer them": challenges of providing primary diabetes care to persons with disabilities in Tamil Nadu. BMC health services research, 22(1), 1-10.

31. Vaidyanathan, S., & Sundar, V. (2011). The role of public sector enterprises in rural development and social welfare. International Journal of Managing Public Sector Information and Communication Technologies, 2(1), 23.

32. Van Meter, D. S., & Van Horn, C. E. (1975). The policy implementation process: A conceptual framework. Administration & Society, 6(4), 445-488

How to cite this article: K. Ravikumar<sup>1</sup>, Dr. M. Jeyaprabha<sup>2</sup>, IMPLEMENTATION PROBLEMS OF SOCIAL WELFARE POLICIES IN TAMIL NADU, Asian J. Med. Res. Health Sci., 2026; 4 (1):22-25.

Source of Support: Nil, Conflicts of Interest: None declared.